

Alyeska Resort – Winter Story Ideas

Surrounded by natural splendor and amazing outdoor activities, Alaska inspires stories in the winter season. With a legendary dog-sled tradition and rich Nordic skiing heritage, the winter comes alive with the two-week celebrations surrounding the annual Iditarod Dog Sled Race held the first week of March. Starting in the months of March and April, longer days and ample sunlight bring life to this winter wonderland. In late April and May, whale watching cruises are available in the renowned waters of Resurrection Bay outside of Seward, Alaska. The heart of spring is also prime helicopter skiing and snowboarding season for the avid participant.

Alyeska Resort offers luxury and convenient access to the Alaskan wilderness. Nestled at the base of the Chugach mountain range, the resort stands alone as Alaska's premier destination and is the cornerstone for a winter time adventure in the Last Frontier.
